

Huffman Encoding Group Workload

For our Huffman encoding project we had each member of the team working on all parts of the project. We had in person meetings in Gould-Simpson where we planned out what we were going to include in our code as well as what the presentation, and did some of the coding and starting putting together the presentation in person as well. We all worked on different parts of the code which we were able to put together for a working project in the end. We each also took on different parts of the presentation and once a part was finished would go back over it to check for accuracy on each other's parts as well as our own.
